Ohio's licensing board—the Counselor, Social Worker, and Marriage and Family Therapist Board—administers licensure to ensure qualified professionals enter the field. Exam Structure and Content

The ASWB exams emphasize critical competencies, testing knowledge across ethics, human development, social policy, clinical interventions, and professional values. Ohio's adoption of these exams underscores alignment with national benchmarks, yet the state supplements these with its own application requirements. The exam's rigor reflects the complexity of social work tasks, where decisions often carry profound implications for vulnerable populations.
