Introduction to the Poem

"Mother to Son" is a powerful poem written by Langston Hughes in 1922. It depicts a mother's conversation with her son, where she shares her life experiences and encourages him to keep moving forward despite difficulties. Structure and Form

The poem is a dramatic monologue, consisting of a single stanza with 20 lines of varying lengths. The absence of a strict rhyme scheme allows the focus to remain on the message rather than formality.

Imagery and Symbolism

Central to the poem is the metaphor of a staircase representing life's journey. The mother describes her life as a staircase that isn't a "crystal stair" – it is full of tacks, splinters, and boards torn up. This vivid imagery symbolizes hardship, struggle, and obstacles endured over time.

The imagery of the staircase conveys the contrast between an ideal, smooth life and the reality of a challenging existence. It also symbolizes progress and upward movement despite adversity.
