One of Emerson's most famous quotes related to success is: “To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded.” This passage encapsulates a holistic and deeply humanistic definition of success, far removed from the mere accumulation of wealth or fame.
