This article examines the context, causes, and consequences of despair as portrayed in the novel, seeking to uncover the deeper meanings Nabokov weaves through his narrative.

Context and Background

Written during the interwar period and published in 1934, Despair reflects the anxieties and existential uncertainties prevalent in Europe at the time. Nabokov, an émigré from Russia, infused the novel with his experiences of dislocation and cultural estrangement. The protagonist, Hermann Karlovich, is a man caught between worlds—emotionally detached, intellectually elitist, and morally ambiguous.

The Anatomy of Despair in the Protagonist

Hermann's despair is not merely sadness; it is a profound alienation that manifests in his obsession with identity and the creation of a doppelgänger. Narrative Technique and Its Role ego and madness, making despair an active force that distorts perception. This approach invites a meta-literary reflection on despair as not only an external condition but also an internal cognitive dissonance.

Philosophical and Psychological Themes

The novel engages with themes of existentialism, identity fragmentation, and the human desire for control in an absurd world.
